Goals of the course	Leaders in the next generation will be requested to show vision aiming to create a "koto-zukuri (value creation) " and to display leadership by trying to realize it on their own accord. For this purpose, the talent to properly grasp changes in society and challenges in the industrial world and to "set their own tasks and resolve them on their own" is essential. In this seminar, we aim to learn and acquire, by providing a place for advance workshops, a process and a talent which can be utilized when people in the scientific field try to become future top research management, leaders of business or management, or in a much wider context, leaders of society. We aim to brush these abilities in this class.
